FARMERS MARKETS

Markets are an excellent opportunity to share information and literature about waste prevention and recycling at booths. All of the market shifts are from 8am-1pm on Saturdays. Volunteers need to arrive a few minutes early and should ask the market coordinator where to setup. Volunteers need to pick-up materials ahead of time at the new program office.

MASTER REUSER TRAINING LAUNCHED IN NEW YORK

From Anna Bitansky, New York City Department of Sanitation, Bureau of Waste Prevention, Reuse and Recycling, New York, NY:

Nicole Tai, program manager for the ARROW (Astoria Residents Reclaiming Our World) building materials reuse center in Long Island City, has announced creation of a Master Reuser Training Program. (Long Island City is within New York City, in the borough of Queens.)

Modelled after the Master Composter program, the Master Reuser program will consist of at least four 2-3 hour training sessions. Session one will be an overview entitled "Why Reuse?"; session two will cover existing reuse resources; the third session is entitled "Artists and Reuse"; the fourth session will deal with reuse and community. Participants in this free workshop series will receive valuable training; a resource book on local and national reuse resources; and ideas on how to reuse on the job, at home, and in life "to improve the planet through more sustainable communities." The program is funded by Citizens Committee of New York City. Volunteers will be asked to donate 12 hours to community reuse events. For more information, contact Nicole at: nctai@att.net

METRO JOB OPENING ANNOUNCEMENT

Have you ever had a hankering to be on the stage? Or even behind the stage? Now's your chance as you star in a Metro puppet show as Edworm, Sammy Salmon or Mother Nature. It's true! You can fulfill your desire to teach children about composting, natural gardening and recycling and let the dramatic side of your personality shine at the same time.

Check out the attached pdf for more details about this great part-time job and pass it on to any interested friends or colleagues. Questions? Contact Freda Sherburne at 503-797-1522 or sherburnef@metro.dst.or.us.
